

House of Hope landscaping improved by local companies

Daily Herald | Posted: Friday, September 17, 2010 4:06 pm

Craig Biesinger (CQ), center, is joined by fellow Fishbowl employees as they load gravel into wheelbarrows to be used on a playground during a service project at the House of Hope in Provo Friday, Sept. 17, 2010. MARK JOHNSTON/Daily Herald

PROVO -- Fishbowl, an Orem-based inventory management software provider, teamed up with Valley View Landscaping and Four Seasons Landscaping for their second annual Fishbowl Day of Service.

A total of 71 employees and spouses took a break from their daily routines and worked on improving the grounds at the House of Hope, a local provider of alcoholism and chemical dependency treatment.

“To see the outpouring of support from the local community, it’s just a wonderful experience,” said Josh Hillam, the facilities manager at House of Hope. “The impact it’s going to have on our clients is amazing,” he said.

Copyright 2010 Daily Herald. All rights reserved.

Posted in Local on Friday, September 17, 2010 4:06 pm Updated: 12:40 pm. | Tags: Orem, Fishbowl, Volunteerism, House Of Hope,

FOR MORE INFORMATION, SPEAK WITH YOUR RESELLER, OR CONTACT:

Fishbowl
1-800-774-7085
www.fishbowlinventory.com